

Crowe Warns Poconos Against Fine Group's Water Program

Senator Bares Plans To Dam Major Creeks

Harrisburg—The report of Gov. John S. Fine's Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee turning down the proposal of Interstate Commission on Delaware River Basin and offering a new proposal to develop water supply for the Philadelphia region "will tear the Poconos apart," Sen. Montgomery F. Crowe (R-Monroe) authorized that statement in an exclusive interview with The Daily Record last night.

Said Sen. Crowe: "People in the Poconos better get interested in this report."

Crowe's statement was prompted by the fact that yesterday he introduced in the Senate a resolution demanding that all maps, engineers' reports and other findings, down to basic documents and figures on which the Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee made its report, be turned over to the Legislature for study and investigation.

The Senate last night unanimously passed Sen. Crowe's resolution.

Pennsylvania Water Resources Committee was named by Gov. Fine to study a proposal of INCODEL that the Delaware River Basin be taken over under a four-state pact for the erection of a series of dams and reservoirs to provide potable water for the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware.

Three of the four state legislatures—New York, New Jersey and Delaware—approved this plan of development of water resources of the basin, but Pennsylvania balked when Gov. Fine said he wished to have the INCODEL plan investigated.

The Governor named the Water Resources Committee to conduct the investigation. Albert M. Greenfield, whom Sen. Crowe described as a leading "Philadelphia Democrat," was named chairman. Another member Crowe described as a "leading Democrat" is Judge Grover C. Badner.

"It is pretty apparent that the Governor has been trapped in this thing with Greenfield and Ladner, Mayor James Clark and Richardson Dilworth, of Philadelphia," Crowe said.

The Monroe Senator also brought into the picture the name of William A. Schnader, former state attorney general, who was a member of the Water Resources Committee which suggested development of the alternative plan for water for Philadelphia.

He recalled that Schnader had once represented Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co., holders of large areas of land in the Poconos which involves small streams and some watersheds.

This concern, Crowe said, has long been interested in trying to sell their holdings. He said that Army Engineers once turned down a proposal to supply water to Philadelphia using such lands because "there was not enough water."

"Now," he said, "they have taken part of INCODEL and some of the other plan, augmenting them with other streams in our Poconos."

"Please understand that I never thought that INCODEL's plan was the perfect answer, but I do say that this is so serious to the resort industry and people of the Poconos that it demands a very real investigation," Crowe asserted.

"We have no ideas of what their complete engineering report shows," he emphasized. "All I've seen is the map which has been in the newspapers, but we intend to get all the documents and make an inquiry."

"At present I have two studies under way," he said. One of these, according to Crowe, deals with INCODEL and the other with the Water Resources Committee report. He said they will be compared and a full report made on the merits of each plan.

"Our information shows they will invade the Poconos with dams on the Brodheads Creek and the McMichaels Creek," he said. The McMichaels dam will affect a backwater up the Pocono Creek.

"If sportsmen think INCODEL would be bad; let them do a study of what will happen to their trout fishing under this latest proposal," he advised.

Chiang Scraps Pact With Russia

Taipei, Formosa, (AP)—The long dead 1945 Treaty of Alliance and Friendship between Russia and Nationalist China was formally scrapped yesterday by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government in a cold war move with hot overtones.

Repudiation of the defunct pact technically put the Nationalists in position to sanction the bombing of the Chinese Changchun Railway in Manchuria which is feeding war supplies made in Russia to Chinese and Korean Red forces in Korea.

Also it would technically permit Chiang to apply military pressure against the Soviet naval bases of Dairen and Port Arthur in Manchuria or take part in United Nations operations against the ports if such a decision were reached by the international organization.

Williams Questions Whether CCC Tried To Swing Farm Vote By Cutting Corn Prices

Washington, (AP)—Sen. Williams (R-Dele) suggested yesterday that the Commodity Credit Corp. tried to drive down the price of corn last fall and affect the national election, but an Agriculture Department official denied it.

Citing figures to show that 70 per cent of the corn sold by the CCC in the last half of 1952 was marketed in August, September and October, the three months before the Nov. 4 election, Williams asked if these heavy sales were not related to the election.

Efforts Made To Hamstring Voice Inquiry

Washington, (AP)—Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) said yesterday key aides left over from the regime of former Secretary of State Acheson have tried to hamstring the current Senate investigation of the State Department's Voice of America program.

Without naming names, McCarthy told newsmen that "the old Acheson lieutenants" were seeking to hinder the inquiry.

But he said the "new team" under Secretary of State Dulles has quietly taken steps to counteract the efforts of the Acheson group.

The Wisconsin senator gave that picture of intra-departmental conflict to reporters as his Senate investigations subcommittee resumed closed-door hearings into charges of alleged waste and subversion in the Voice program.

Meanwhile, congressional informants said Dr. Robert L. Johnson of Philadelphia, president of Temple University, has been tentatively selected to replace Dr. Wilson Compton, resigned, as head of the department's overseas information program which includes the Voice of America.

Atom Tests Slated

Las Vegas, Nev., (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission said yesterday that the radiation monitoring and warning system has been reactivated for the spring nuclear test series at the Nevada proving grounds. The tests are expected next month.

Blackmailing Of King Gustaf Charged By Palace Officials

Stockholm, Sweden, (AP)—High palace officials told the Court of Appeals yesterday how large sums were paid out of royal funds to buy the silence of a man they said had blackmailed Sweden's late King Gustaf V for decades.

The defendant in the case, Kurt Haljby, 57, was sentenced after a secret trial last December to eight years at hard labor for "gross blackmail" of the late King.

The case is being retried at Haljby's request on undisclosed grounds. Testimony by royal court officials is being presented in open trial. Only a minor part of the proceedings are still being held in closed court.

Gustaf V died in 1950 at 92. The Lord High Chamberlain of the royal court, Baron Reinhold Rudbeck, told the Appeals Court in written testimony that Haljby believed "his intimacy with the King entitled him to demand aid from him." Rudbeck said he had been visited three or four times by Haljby and once by Haljby's wife.

The baron quoted the chief controller of the royal household as saying "Haljby comes here demanding money and making all sorts of threats, including publicity."

U.N. Assembly Opens Seventh Session Today

United Nations, N. Y. (AP)—President Eisenhower's new team in the U. N. gave its plans a last-minute check yesterday as leading delegates flocked here to resume today the crucial meetings of the Seventh U. N. Assembly.

Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., the new chief delegate who sits with Eisenhower's Cabinet, maintained strict silence on his strategy.

Delegates in position to know said they expected him to wait for Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky to make the first move.

Vishinsky, never known to talk much in advance about his plans, arrived in New York yesterday true to form and almost matched Lodge's silence.

The veteran Soviet diplomat, who has been the top delegate to every regular Assembly since the second meeting in 1947, unites only enough to tell ship reporters, "No news is the best news."

Then he roared off to the Soviet mansion on Park Ave. in a limousine at the head of one of the highest-ranking Iron Curtain delegations ever to come here.

Landing with Vishinsky were four Iron Curtain foreign ministers: Václav David, Czechoslovakia; Stanislaw Skrzyszewski, Poland; Kuzma Kiselev, White Russia; and A. M. Baranovsky, the Soviet Ukraine.

Another arrival was V. K. Kishina Menon, India, who last fall introduced a resolution for settling the Korean prisoner deadlock which was approved by the Assembly and rejected by the Reds. Menon did not reveal whether he intends a new move, but Lodge is known to be watching Menon to see if he has any new proposals.

Lodge and Vishinsky are expected to dominate the Assembly debate, with Menon desperately trying to find some in-between solution to end the Korean War. Vishinsky refused to say whether he will lodge a complaint in the Assembly that the U. S. is committing aggression by helping Formosa, but Lodge and his team are prepared for such a move.

Lodge's deputy delegate, James J. Wadsworth, was sworn in at the U. S. mission. The Assembly team was confirmed by the Senate in Washington yesterday.

Also with Lodge are Ambassador Ernest A. Gross, the only veteran U. N. man in the line-up; Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Sen. Theodore Green (R-R.I.). Wiley and Green served in the first part of the Seventh Assembly last fall. Gross has been deputy U. S. delegate since 1949, but has resigned and will leave the delegation early in April.

Anti-Enslavement Bill Introduced

Washington, (AP)—President Eisenhower's denunciation of Soviet rulers for "the subjugation of free peoples" was incorporated in a joint resolution introduced in the House yesterday by Rep. Vorys (R-Ohio).

Vorys said his draft follows exactly the language of a resolution the President submitted to Congress last Friday with a request that the Senate and House join him in "making clear that we would never acquiesce in the enslavement of any people."

The Eisenhower declaration strikes against any interpretation of international agreements made secretly during World War Two which have been perverted to bring small nations "to the captivity of Soviet despotism."

Fine Fills Vacancy On State Court

Harrisburg, (AP)—Gov. John S. Fine yesterday named Judge J. Colvin Wright, of the Bedford County Common Pleas Court, to the State Superior Court. The Senate promptly confirmed the appointment unanimously. The post pays $23,000.

Judge Wright will serve under the appointment until the end of 1953. He was appointed to fill the vacancy created by the election of Judge John C. Arnold, Clearfield, to the State Supreme Court last year.

The judicial post will be filled for a full 10-year term at this year's election.

President Judge of the Superior Court is Chester H. Rhodes of Stroudsburg.

Durkin Aides Discuss T-H

Washington, (AP)—Secretary of Labor Durkin predicted there will be "a meeting of the minds on some things" yesterday after the first meeting of his public-industry labor advisory committee on recommending changes in the Taft-Hartley law.

"It was a very good meeting," Durkin said. "Everyone was agreeable to getting right to work and trying to reach some area of agreement."

This was contrary to advance predictions that the key industry and labor union leaders who are committee members would be unable to reconcile their sharply conflicting views. However, yesterday's session apparently steered clear of getting down to detailed discussions of the law.

The committee is composed of 15 members drawn equally from industry, organized labor and the public. It adjourned after yesterday's hour and a half initial meeting until March 5, Durkin indicated hope that the committee may come up then with recommendations.

Legislature Gets Economy Proposals

Harrisburg, (AP)—Gov. John S. Fine submitted to the 1953 Legislature last night the Chesterman Committee report calling for drastic reorganization of the state government to save 100 million dollars a biennium.

The governor, although praising the bulk of the economy proposals, disagreed outright with some of them and commended others with reservations.

"Let me make it crystal clear at the outset that the Chesterman Committee does not anticipate nor expect—I am sure—acceptance of its reorganization of the state government in toto (in the whole)," he told the lawmakers in joint session.

Fine also disclosed he has directed state agencies to carry out immediately—"where practical to do so"—the recommendations of the economy unit which can be accomplished by administrative order.

The report said the 100 million dollar economy figure was "reasonably conservative and readily attainable" after six years of revamped operations.

The governor echoed the report's estimate that immediate savings in the next two years could total nearly 34 million. Of that, about 16 millions could be used in cutting down the 157 million dollar bid for new taxes asked by Fine.

Meanwhile, Sen. Rowland B. Mahany, Senate Republican floor leader, said a joint Senate-House Legislative Committee will be named to hold public hearings on the Chesterman Committee report.

"We want to know from the members of the committee and their staff how they arrived at the economy figures," he told a newsman.

The public hearings, Mahany added, will probably start next week.

In the House, legislation to start the ball rolling for a new state Constitution was amended, 97-87, to provide that the question of whether a constitution convention should be held at all be placed on the November election ballot.

On the same ballot, under the bill up for a final vote today, Pennsylvania voters will elect 110 delegates to a constitutional convention which would be held in Harrisburg next January.

Fine, in his 6,000-word speech to the General Assembly, went down the list of Chesterman Committee recommendations and gave his personal reaction.

As an example, he said he would oppose any attempt to transfer functions of the State Milk Control Commission to a farm bureau chief in the agriculture department, if that was contemplated by the committee.

The governor would favor, however, transfer of the board as an agency of the agriculture department. It is now a separate board.

Egypt Vows Fight To Oust British

Cairo, (AP)—Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, acting Army chief of staff, declared yesterday the British must either pull out of the strategic Suez Canal zone area or "fight for their lives."

Nasser, who has urged guerrilla warfare against British troops if they remained on Egyptian soil, reiterated this determination. He declared "we will fight to the death in every possible field if our sacred rights are denied us."

Fine Opposes Plans Affecting Resorts, Colleges

Two of the Chesterman Committee's suggestions that have a distinct bearing on Monroe County were opposed yesterday by Gov. John S. Fine in a report to the General Assembly.

Fine expressed opposition to the committee's proposal that tourist and vacation advertising be discontinued and the Pennsylvania Week fete be abolished.

He also said it is "highly questionable" whether half of the state's 14 teachers' colleges should be eliminated as proposed by the Chesterman group.

Bohlen, White Nominated As Ambassadors

Washington, (AP)—The White House yesterday announced the nomination of Charles (Chip) Bohlen as ambassador to Soviet Russia and Francis White as ambassador to Mexico.

Both are career diplomats. The 48-year-old Bohlen is now a State Department counselor and a top expert on Russia. He will succeed George F. Kennan, who recently returned from Moscow after being labeled personally unacceptable by the Soviets.

Moscow dispatches over the weekend said the USSR has notified the Eisenhower administration that Bohlen is acceptable.

A native of Clayton, N. Y., Bohlen is a graduate of Harvard University. He entered the foreign service in 1929 and has served in Prague, Paris, Moscow and Tokyo. During World War II he was chief of the State Department's division of Far East affairs.

White, 60, will succeed former Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York who resigned as ambassador to Mexico last December.

White, who was graduated from Yale University in 1913, was assistant secretary of state from 1927 to 1933. From 1934 to 1942 he was associated with the Foreign Bondholders Protective Association.

Among other assignments, he served in Buenos Aires, Madrid and Havana. He also headed the State Department's division of Latin American affairs.

Keating Suggests Fair Play Code In Investigations

Washington, (AP)—Rep. Keating (R-NY) urged the House yesterday to act on a "fair play" code of procedure for congressional investigating committees.

In a letter to Chairman Allen (R-Ill) of the House Rules Committee, Keating requested an early hearing and committee clearance for his bill which would amend House rules to protect witnesses summoned before investigators.

"To legislate, Congress must investigate," Keating wrote. "But along with the responsibility of investigating goes the correlative obligation to insure that such investigations and subsequent hearings are fairly conducted."

Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee decided to ask the views of Atty. Gen. Brownell and the American Bar Association on a bill to grant immunity to witnesses in congressional investigations.

Lenten Meditation

By Rev. Frank W. Wingerter

East Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church

Lenten worship is a privilege. In many nations millions will not be able to express a desire for, or go to a place for divine cleansing.

We are fortunate. Without fear of dictators, we may take time out of our rushing lives for devotions.

Another privilege of Lent is its opportunity for greater happiness. God is responsible for ninety-eight percent of the fruit of our pay-envelopes.

When we pridefully accept all the credit, there are voids in our lives. A right attitude shown in constant worship, as well as an allegiance to the virtues of the Cross, leads us to happiness.

Finally, the privilege of Lent is to give Christ to others. They possess little joy because they are personally insecure and lost to God. Our gift will lead them out of the wilderness. With them, at the foot of the Cross, we will find refreshment.

Board Accepts Bids Totalling Over $253,000

Contracts totaling $253,790.80 for a new building were awarded in Stroudsburg yesterday by Young Men's Christian Association directors.

The bids were opened at the YMCA by 13 directors and officials.

The contracts were awarded on base bid three, from which items amounting to $15,896.20 had been trimmed.

Winners of contracts were the following low bidders:

General contract, Paul Edinger, Stroudsburg, $191,992.

Heating, H. C. Archibald, Stroudsburg, $23,865.80.

Plumbing, Hanford L. Cleveland, East Stroudsburg, $21,733.

Electric wiring, Matt Kime, Stroudsburg, $16,200.

Next step is an actual start on construction. No date was given at yesterday's meeting, for it was unattended by the contractors involved, according to YMCA Board Secretary Charles A. Keiper.

J. Albert Groner presided at the board session in the absence of President D. W. Frankentfield. Architect Harold T. Rinker reported for the building committee during the meeting.

Those present included E. Holt Wyckoff and Lester Ellis, Thomas Kistler, Theodore Hoffman, Mrs. Clifford Heller, James T. Kitson, Rev. Frank Blatt, Arlington W. Williams, Dr. Joseph F. Noonan and YMCA secretary John Wilson.

Taft Sees Ike Ending 'Mess'

Delaware, O. (AP)—Sen. Robert A. Taft, most powerful voice in the Republican-controlled Senate, declared yesterday the Eisenhower administration is on its way toward "cleaning up the mess in Washington."

"The 34-day-old administration," Taft said in his first major speech on the national political situation since the presidential election, is busy disposing of the Truman "legacy of mistake after mistake, burden after burden."

In a "Republican Day" address to some 1,800 Ohio Wesleyan University students as part of their annual Institute of Practical Politics, Taft detailed these problems confronting the Republican party:

"A mess in international relations, a mess in Korea and a philosophy and plan for spending that will be hard for us to break."

And Taft capped his analysis of politics past and present with this comment about the future:

"I don't think the Russians are going to start another world war. They are now in a position where they can make some gains without fighting. If they risk all in another world war, they may find Communism—their brand of Communism—wiped out."

On the "mess in Korea," Taft was brief and blunt. He said it is a war resulting from the Democratic administration "practically inviting the Communists to come in. There appears to be no solution except to maintain a very strong military position in a situation where it is almost impossible to win."

Taft summed up the situation in Washington yesterday with the quip:

"We are close enough yet to the Truman administration that we still, to some extent, view with alarm; but the Republicans have been in such a short time we still can't point with pride."

The job, he said, of "cleaning up the mess in Washington will not be finished in a week or a month. It will take weeks and months before we get complete control of the administration. There are 2½ million federal employees—10 times as many as at the time of the last political turnover in 1933—and no one knows yet just what is going on in the various federal departments."

Denies 'Germ' Charge

Tokyo, (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark, in a blistering and extraordinary statement, today attacked Red China's renewed racial accusations of Allied germ warfare and expressed deepest sympathy for two captive Marine airmen whom the Reds claimed had confessed to dropping germ bombs on North Korea.

Dr. Kurt Wimer Says UN No Miracle Group

More than a debating society and less than a miracle organization was the way Dr. Kurt Wimer, Bartonsville, described the United Nations last night.

He discussed the UN, and whether it is likely to solve its problems, at a meeting of the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club at East Stroudsburg Methodist Church.

The UN must face problems which it has not created, therefore can't be expected to solve them immediately, said the professor of social science at the Teachers College.

The severity of the conflict facing it, coupled with the UN's organizational set-up, makes a solution to all problems nearly impossible, Dr. Wimer said.

He discussed the six major organs of the UN body:

The Security Council is practically dead, because of the voting procedure which enables a major nation to veto any issue.

The General Assembly is one of the most democratic organs because all UN members are seated here and have a voice in the organization's affairs.

The Secretariat is the house-keeping group of the UN, which conducts the day-to-day business, operates files, provides the international staff to keep the UN functioning.

The Trusteeship Council and Economic and Social Councils and the Court are the remaining major organs.

3,500 More Flee Eastern Germany

Berlin (AP)—Three thousand five hundred refugees from Soviet-occupied territory reached West Berlin over the weekend, bringing the total for February to about 30,000.

Five Injured In Accident At Wind Gap

Wind Gap — Five persons were injured in a three-car crash one-half mile north of here at 2:30 a.m. yesterday.

State police of the Brodheads-ville station said an estimated $700 damages resulted from the accident which occurred on Route 115.

According to police a car driven by Frank Becker, 39, of White Haven RD1, was traveling south. Becker claims he was forced off the road by a northbound vehicle.

Becker's car crashed into a utility pole sending the pole falling across the highway. Two other cars, one behind Becker driven by David Stalker, 19, of Clifton, N.J., and the other, northbound, driven by Harry W. Gailey, 51, of Wilkes-Barre, hit the fallen pole.

All injured persons were in Becker's car and were taken to Eason Hospital by the local ambulance.

The driver received facial lacerations and bruises. John Ackerman, 37, White Haven RD, received lacerations of the nose and right ear and possible nose fracture. Both were treated.

Hospitalized were Becker's wife, Vera, 37, who suffered a fractured pelvis, concussion and severe lacerations of the face and scalp; Mrs. Barbara Frey, 29, of Easton, possible skull fracture, possible ankle fracture and severe contusions and abrasions, and Charles Becker, 42, White Haven RD, fracture of the left arm and multiple lacerations of the face and right hand.

Conditions of Mrs. Becker and Mrs. Frey were reported "fair" by hospital officials last night. Charles Becker was reported in good condition.

Damage to Becker's car was set at $600. The Gailey vehicle was damaged about $75 and Stalker's auto, $25.

President Plays Golf On Holiday

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower took a holiday from affairs of state yesterday, the observance of George Washington's Birthday, and got in 18 holes of golf.

Eisenhower left the White House about 11 a.m. for Burning Tree Country Club in nearby Maryland and returned to the mansion at 7:15 p.m.

After the game, the President sat around the clubhouse "just taking it easy," an aide said.

Entertainers To Compete For Prizes

Amateur entertainers will have their "big night" locally this Thursday in East Stroudsburg Junior High School auditorium.

Under the sponsorship of the Exchange Club, the local amateurs will be competing for a list of prizes and a chance to be seen or heard in a larger show of this kind in Allentown.

At tryouts last week, Exchange judges selected a total of 14 "acts" for Thursday night's contest.

These "acts" ranged from a solo imitation of the best-selling record "It's In the Book" to Stroudsburg High School's "Jug Band."

Acts from all areas surrounding the Stroudsburgs were heard in the auditions. Two acts from Hacketts-town, N. J., were chosen for the finals.

All members of the club have been given a quota of tickets to the "amateur night" show for sale to community residents.

Those who do not buy tickets from club members may pick them up Thursday night at the junior high school door.

Joseph Kulick, club member who has had considerable experience with such shows in the past, will serve as master of ceremonies for Thursday night's performance.

Proceeds from the show will be used in furthering the Exchange Club's "youth work" on behalf of the young people of both boroughs and surrounding communities.

At present, Exchange funds are used in helping to finance the twin-borough youth center in the American Legion building.

Queen Elizabeth To Entertain Tito

Tito's visit will be a private one, Eden said, "since it would be inappropriate for a state visit to take place before the coronation. He comes, however, as a guest of the government."

The Adoption Bills

Most persons concerned over the welfare of the state's neglected children are fairly well agreed that changes are needed in the statutes for the protection of children and parents.

Presently, there is no central agency through which adoptions can be made. And there is no protection for foster parents who take a child and learn to love it as their own.

The real parents, after once giving up the child, may drag the foster parents into court and regain the child.

To correct these situations, three bills are before the Legislature with the support of both the Republican and Democratic leaders and Sen. Robert D. Fleming, of Aspinwall.

These bills represent years of study, have the backing of many humane and well-versed persons and should be passed.

But now the stream has been muddied by introduction of another adoption bill by Sen. A. Evans Kephart, of Philadelphia.

The only purpose this bill seems to serve is to take the play away from the better Fleming bill.

If there is anything in the Kephart Bill that would strengthen the Fleming measure, it should be taken from the Kephart proposal and added to the other.

Otherwise, the Kephart bill should be forgotten and the Fleming bill passed and sent to Governor Fine.

Highway Creepers

Our neighbor state to the north has taken cognizance of the danger inherent in slow driving as well as fast, with introduction of a bill in the Legislature at Albany making the "creepers" equally guilty with those who roar along at reckless rates of speed.

Perhaps our own state will interest itself in the same sort of highway discipline, for there has been a growing tendency on the part of a great many drivers to feel that it is perfectly proper for them to wheel along at excessively deliberate speeds when by their very slowness they build up long irritation and reckless chance-taking results.

Obviously, no one cares how slow a vehicle is moving when there is another lane always available for safe passing. Then the following traffic can swing along and be on its way, leaving the funeral pace to those who enjoy such leisurely transport.

But in the majority of existing highways, with but two lanes available for traffic moving in both directions, the hazard becomes obvious. Impatient souls, blocked by the creepers, finally reach the point of temper where they just can't take it any longer and that is when they start taking chances by pulling out of line in an effort to get by, at points where they cannot see far enough ahead for such tactics to be safe.

Our own state police, when they are able to do so, have warned the funeral-paced drivers off the road until the backed-up traffic clears, but it would appear that a definite law against such dangerous driving is needed.

The Once Over —by H. I. Phillips

The Buoyant Mousetrap Builder

The Man-Who-Made-a-Better Mousetrap was interviewed by us for the first time since President Eisenhower took over, and he was feeling mighty good.

"The path to my door ain't all jammed up with politicians, economic experts, Federal agents and letter carriers loaded down with new questionnaires," he said gayly. "It's twenty years since I was allowed to make a mousetrap without interference. Know what happened every time I turned out a better mousetrap?"

"No," we said.

"I got sued by the Government as a trust or something. Not only me but all my relatives, including the wife and kiddies."

We pointed to a couple of huge factory wings which seemed unoccupied. "I'm able to shut them down now," he explained. "They were the two wings I had to add to my factory to store all the Government forms, rules and regulations and to house the big legal staff I had to have in order to interpret them and decide what they meant. Looking back, it seems to me I didn't have much time to build mousetraps."

"But the Republicans haven't been in long enough for you to feel so relieved," we remarked.

"They weren't in a week before I felt like a new mousetrap man. There was something in the very air," he said.

"Eisenhower has not announced a definite mousetrap policy yet," we warned him.

"No, but he's the kind of man who could hear of more people than ever beating a path to a mousetrap factory without thinking it was something pretty shameful and so dangerous that it required action by the Attorney General. The Democrats even passed rules specifying how wide and how long the path to the door could be."

"How's the path-beating been lately?" we asked.

"Wonderful. Everybody who is beating a path to a mousetrap maker's door ain't relieved and at ease. They ain't furtive any more and always behaving like they might be violating a code or a new order from some Federal bureau. It's been wonderful for me, too. Not since the war was elected have I had any bureaucrats storm into my shop with some new regulation specifying how many holes I could put into a mousetrap, and whether an additional hole would have to be listed and charged for as extra equipment."

The Man-Who-Built-a-Better Mousetrap paused and continued: "I'm a six-hole mousetrap man myself but last year the New Deal insisted I go on a five-hole basis."

"Why," we asked.

"Mrs. Roosevelt or somebody said it was fairer to the mice. And Keyserling said the sixth hole was not economic as it gave the country a surplus of holes. I think it finally got before some U. N. committee."

"Aren't you demanding any better mousetrap subsidies?" we asked. "Don't you need any support prices for mousetraps?"

"Nope," he concluded, sounding a very new note. "I'll just depend on the mice."

Wrap 'Em Up!

A Cornell professor says a way has been found to sell pre-packaged roses and other plants and flowers in groceries and chain stores. Moving us to verse, with proper apologies to Austin Dobson:

Here where mid-canned goods she goes,
Bloom the hyacinth and rose;
Here mid liver and pigs' hock
Flaunts the flaming hollyhock.
In these alleys full of meat
Bargain orchids are complete;
(Grocer, in these chain-store
crushes,
Tell me where you keep your thrushes.)

Then there was a cousin of ours, Guinevere Sasafra, who could do a pole vault carrying a deep-dish apple pie without injury to herself or the pie. (We forget the height of the jump. All we remember is that the pie went four feet higher than Guinevere did, and that she caught it on the descent. There are those who insist that when she landed, she had not only the apple pie, but a fruit cake and a couple of jellyrolls. There was also a Mrs. Aristotle McGonigle in our town who won a harbor swim (wearing hobbles) and totting a strawberry shortcake. Tide was against her, too. Those were the days of kitchen giants.

Late February Urge

This is about the time of year I would be there, instead of here.

And join the mob of Gulf Stream slummers
To get away from all those plumbers.

Around my shack the frigid wind goes
My heart cries out for pink flammings;
"A virus," says my doctor sadly,
As he bills me once more so gladly;
My friends know no bacillus taint
They're all down where the virus ain't.

Justice Department Set To Crack Waterfront Rackets

Washington — There is real trouble in store for the waterfront rackets.

The Justice Department is going to crack down on them.

This attack will be entirely separate from the scandal-exposing probe that will be made by Senator Charles T. Tobey, bible-quoting crusader from New Hampshire.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell proposes to prosecute on criminal charges.

His targets are both management and union officials.

They will be accused of violating various provisions of the anti-trust laws.

An exhaustive study showed these statutes afforded the soundest legal basis for federal action to clean up vicious waterfront conditions. That is why the job is being handled by the Anti-Trust Division rather than the Criminal Division.

The first Justice Department crackdown will take place in New York.

A grand jury will be convened there to act on a large mass of evidence compiled by the FBI. Indictments will be sought against both management and labor.

Similar prosecutions are contemplated in other racket-riddled ports as soon as the FBI completes reports on them. Heading the list are Philadelphia and Jersey City, N. J.

Marcus Hollabaugh, chief of the Special Litigation Section of the Anti-Trust Division, has been at work for weeks preparing the New York case. It will be handled by Justice Department attorneys, who have already been picked for this assignment.

The anti-trust laws specifically exempt organized labor. But the waterfront prosecutions will be based on the contention that union officials "acted in concert" with management and thereby made themselves liable to charges of violating the law.

New Clash — President Eisenhower has a new patronage headache—the chairmanship of the Federal Power Commission.

This time it's a wrangle between two Republican senators.

Several weeks ago the word went out that the choice Power Commission plume would be given to Jeff A. Robertson, head of the Kansas State Corporation Commission. Robertson has the powerful backing of Senator Frank Carlson (R., Kan.), leading lieutenant of the President in last year's campaign, and Republican National Chairman Wes Roberts.

With this potent support, Robertson appeared a clinch to get the prize. In fact, Carlson introduced him to friends as "the new Chairman of the Power Commission."

But Robertson still hasn't got the job, and may never get it.

Reason is a big monkey wrench that has been thrown at him by Senator Charles Potter (R., Mich.).

The legless war veteran has written a letter to President Eisenhower blasting Robertson from stem to stern. The Kansan is charged with being hostile to the St. Lawrence Waterway and closely associated with large oil interests.

This sizzling letter isn't all. Senator Charles Tobey (R., N. H.), chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, is siding with Potter in the dispute. Tobey has served notice that if Robertson is appointed he will be subjected to a tough investigation by the Committee.

Such a probe could prove embarrassing all around. It might open the way for a Senate airing of the charges against National Chairman Robertson on the purchase of an insurance company building by the 1951 Kansas Legislature. Robertson got a fee of $11,000 for arranging the sale, and the matter has become a red-hot issue in the state. Robertson is alleged to have had a hand in the deal.

Potter wrote directly to the President on the advice of Senate colleagues. The Michiganian hasn't made his scorching letter public, but the following are its highlights:

"It has been called to my attention by many of my constituents in Michigan and by citizens of other states that Mr. Robertson's record is of such nature and character that his appointment to the Commission would be against the best interests of the State of Michigan particularly."

"His record clearly demonstrates that he would oppose the development of the St. Lawrence Waterway in which Michigan and her sister states are so vitally interested. It is my understanding at the present time, that the four members of the Federal Power Commission are equally divided in their vote on power projects relating to the St. Lawrence; and that Mr. Robertson's appointment would tip the balance in favor of those opposing the Waterway which you and I have wholeheartedly endorsed."

Checkers was played during the time of the ancient Pharaohs of Egypt.

The phrase, "In God We Trust," first appeared on coins in 1864.

Ecuador is the world's chief supplier of balala wood.

The most important food fish in the world is the herring.

Cotton cloth produced in the United States in an average year would cover two states the size of Delaware.

In the past 2,000 years, some 800 cities have been destroyed by earthquakes with a loss of perhaps one million lives.

George Sokolsky Says... People, Congress Should Know Details Of Secret Agreements At Yalta, Potsdam

THE PACT AT YALTA

Any consideration of the cancellation of the secret agreements made at Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam must, as Senator Homer Ferguson so correctly contends, be premised on a knowledge of what they were. The people ought to know, too. And the point needs to be made that secret agreements were entered into elsewhere which require inquiry. For instance, it is true that the United States has a secret agreement with Canada to keep the price of newsprint fabulously high in the interests of Canada and to the detriment of the United States? Secret diplomacy breeds suspicion and uncertainty.

Some of the things done at Yalta have become clear by the course of events and by publication in memoirs, books, speeches and casual papers. One of the obvious changes that affected the whole course of events has to do with words. I cite an instance: In the Atlantic Charter, the phrase appears "sovereign rights and self government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them." To that phrase at Yalta was added "by the aggressor nations." The aggressor nations have been defined as Germany, Italy and Japan. Therefore, by the Yalta agreement, any territories seized by Soviet Russia, not an aggressor nation, could remain seized. It is difficult to understand why Roosevelt and Churchill altogether ignored the nature of the Hitler-Stalin alliance which Hitler, not Stalin, broke. In that alliance, Russia definitely appears as an aggressor.

Yalta took place February 4-11, 1945. By that time, Russia had already seized, Estonia, Lithuania, Eastern Finland, Eastern Poland. Also, by that time, Russia was in occupation of Bulgaria, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Hungary. By the use of four words, "by the aggressor nations," Soviet Russia came into possession, by consent of Roosevelt and Churchill, of the vast areas indicated, perhaps 80,000,000 European people. (The United States never recognized the absorption by Russia of the three Baltic states.)

How it was possible to define Soviet Russia as a non aggressor in 1945, it is difficult to understand, but our statesmanship did just that.

Also at Yalta it was agreed to institute the veto in the Security Council of the United Nations when organized. Alger Hiss was Roosevelt's expert at Yalta; Alger Hiss was the State Department official at San Francisco in charge of the organization of the United Nations. There is evidence that the veto was Roosevelt's idea and was presented to the Yalta Conference by Edward R. Stettinius Jr.

Another conclusion reached at Yalta was to give to Soviet Russia three votes in the Assembly while all other countries only had one vote each. It was at one stage of the conference proposed that the United States also have three votes, but Roosevelt dropped the idea. At San Francisco, the United States voted to give Soviet Russia the three votes because it had been agreed to at Yalta.

It would also seem that Henry Morgenthau and Averell Harriman had cooked up a scheme to make a huge loan to Soviet Russia. It was to be a loan in the millions. The Russians after 1945 often referred to the promised credits which were not forthcoming and took the position that they had been double-crossed.

It was at Yalta that the stupid and costly Morgenthau Plan was agreed upon. It is necessary to discover the origin of that plan. Harry Dexter White, an original member of the Harold Ware Communist Cell, was Mr. Morgenthau's chief adviser in the Treasury. Germany was not only to be conquered, it was to be devastated, so that never could anyone use its territory to defend the Western world against Soviet Russia. Germany was to be turned into a pastoral state, through which Russia could march unimpeded.

In addition, this agreement recognized slave labor. How the United States could agree to slave labor is beyond understanding. We not only agreed to slave labor but used American troops to enforce slavery. The Russians employed slave labor during the course of the war. This needs a broad-scale investigation into the facts, of which we possess only dribbles.

If these agreements are now cancelled, their harm cannot be undone. The only value in their cancellation would be publication of all the documents relating to them. It would educate the world to the evils of secret diplomacy. It would fix responsibility precisely.

10 Years 20 Ago Looking At Life —by Erich Brandeis

Somebody complimented me on my "understanding of human nature."

For a moment I felt very pleased with myself. After all, human nature is a very complicated thing, and to understand it one must be quite an intelligent pumpkin.

But then I went to New York City and saw something which made me realize that I don't understand human nature at all.

The bus strikes was on. Nosy, like all newspapermen, I went right into the thick of it—to one of the garages where the idle buses were parked.

When I lived in New York I used the Fifth Avenue buses quite a bit to go to my office, and I got acquainted with several of the conductors and drivers.

I used to get on at the end of the line—Washington Square, to be exact—and whenever we had some minutes before it was time to start we'd sit on a bench and chew the fat.

These bus drivers and conductors were just like any other people you and I know. They had wives and children, and homes and cars and radios. They had small bank accounts and most of them were neat and pretty well educated.

But above all they had dreams. I guess almost everybody who doesn't live in an Iron Curtain country has dreams.

All in all they were pretty darn nice people.

This day, when I went to the bus garage, I saw a couple of the very drivers with whom I had become acquainted.

They were on picket duty. They were carrying placards expressing their grievances in no uncertain language.

I walked up to one of them and wanted to talk to him.

"Go away," he retorted, "you are only going to put everything I say in your damned newspaper."

He had an ugly expression on his face—altogether different from the kindly fellow with whom I sat on a Washington Square bench some years ago.

Why it is, I wonder, that when men and women go on strike, or have grievances against anybody, they change their personality so completely?

If I understood this, then I could say that I understand human nature. But I don't.

There is something in a strike situation—and we have all too many strikes—that is the same thing that makes wars.

Who gains by these strikes? Certainly not the men and women who strike. Some of them go hungry; they lose income; their wives and their children suffer. In the end everybody compromises and only the leaders have fortified their jobs and stuffed their pocket books.

I think this whole strike business is management's fault as much as the labor leaders'.

If management would build BRIDGES instead of GULFS, if it would do more to ATTRACT labor than to ALIENATE it, if it made labor its FRIEND rather than its FOE—then we'd have peace at home.

And until we have peace at home, we'll never have it abroad.

CUTIES

Henry Wallace, former vice president of these United States, is reported experimenting with the raising of chickens that lay blue eggs. What's Henry trying to do—corner the Easter colored hen fruit market?

Incidentally, the Agriculture department announces a new device which sorts cacklesberries according to color—from snow white to dark brown. They apparently didn't figure on Henry's blue jobs.

Prof. Cecil Martin of Canada's McGill university says there's no such thing as a real Irishman. You'll note the professor was careful not to make that statement on St. Patrick's Day!

What's more amazing than Martin's statement, says Patrick Shaun Dennis O'Shamrock, is the fact that the professor was born, of all places, in County Wicklow, Ireland.

The Hottest Scandal in Town

The social-set is hilarious over photos being shown around Palm Beach by the smartly-dressed spots by the estate of a millionaire Socialist.

The spic polaroids show him "in flagrante delicto" with another woman.

She got the photos this way: Learning his Park Avenue hotel hideout (where he had a Redhead stashed away) the wife, a rusty-haired herself, calmly approached the hotel desk and asked for the key "to my room."

The clerk assumed she was The Other Woman and gave her the key. . . . Wife (with two hocus-focusses) walked in and Oafer-goodness! She has been assured of a divorce and a Sugar$ Settlement but displays the photos to Palm Beach chums anyway.

I. L. and A. D. (newsopportunity) are others that will shock the Criminal Courts bldg. press room One Fine Day.

Congressional Comm. agents are here inquiring where editor James Wecslar lives. At Westport, Conn., or 420 West End Avenue.

Theme song for the D. A.'s staff: "You're the Taps!" There's a tap on a famed night spot.

Many of the kerricketers (in the Jack & Jillie Set) who are ducking the midtown places because of the d. a. investigators snooping around, have a new hangout in Mount Vernon. . . . A big card club (in town) hired an expert to cover a too-often winner. The verdict of the experts: He is a "perfectly honest card-player" and also a mind-reader. . . . Christine was at the Colony with a party of 5 the other night. . . . Two news-weeklies featured a photo of the Criminal Courts bldg. 13th floor ladies' room door— with Pat Ward sticking out her head—for the reporters. This picture was spurned by all local newspapers, Judge!

Yesterday's Enquirer confirmed that witnesses for the State (in the Minot Jerke trial) mentioned Billy Cahn. "Madam" Steel testified she phoned Jerke long distance from her midtown apt. And that (from PI 9-6227) the San Souci, Miami Beach, Person-to-person call. . . . Earlier, Pat Ward swore he (Cahn) "introduced me to many men who gave me $50 and more."

Jelke is on trial for "procuring and inducing." Sam Chapman was convicted (under Section 88, of the Penal Code) for merely introducing "girls to friends for business reasons." Mr. D. A., what about Wm. (Bill) Cahn and others in the Girl Racket? This law says that a "procurer" doesn't have to benefit financially in arranging women for men or vice versa to be charged with a crime. . . . Cahn (real name Wm. Cohen) has his portraits in the NYC Rogues Gallery. Arrested 4 times. Once in Miami, where he did a bit. Twice in N. Y. Twice for Petty Larceny, once for Grand Larceny. He was sentenced to an indeterminate term at the Penitentiary.

$54 questions for the District Attorney: Aren't all the chaps who had anything to do with Pat Ward (before she was 18) liable to (1) impairing the morals of a minor—and (2) statutory rape?

Aren't all married men involved adulterers, regardless of her age? Maybe some of the men who talked so flippantly with the press (such as Max Auzsli) aren't That Smart.

What the reporters "hmf" about (over Judge Valente's hating) is this: If His Honor felt the testimony (as he announced the first day) was so obnoxious that it gave him a feeling of nausea—why didn't he disqualify himself? No other judge (the press was assured by judges) would have barred them.

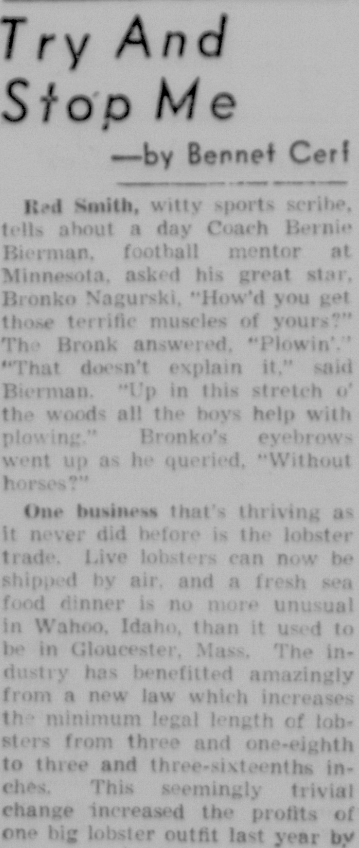

No doubt her lawyer (Sala) feels client Pat is more to be patented than censured. She claims she has an offer to write a column for teen-agers.

Meaning, one presumes, the ones released from reform schools.

The Bronk answered, "Plovin'." "That doesn't explain it," said Bierman. "Up in this stretch of the woods all the boys help with plovin'." Bronko's eyebrows went up as he queried, "Without horses?"

One business that's thriving as it never did before is the lobster trade. Live lobsters can now be shipped by air, and a fresh sea food dinner is no more unusual in Wahoo, Idaho, than it used to be in Gloucester, Mass. The industry has benefitted amazingly from a new law which increases the minimum legal length of lobsters from three and one-eighth to three and three-sixteenths inches. This seemingly trivial change increased the profits of one big lobster outfit last year by over ten per cent!

Nominating Petitions For May Primary In Circulation Today

Two Superior Court Judges To Be Named

Harrisburg (AP) — The 1953 local election campaign in Pennsylvania opens officially today.

It will be the first day for candidates to circulate nominating petitions for the May 19 primary.

Thousands of county, city, borough and township offices are at stake at the Nov. 3 municipal election.

Two judges of the State Superior Court will be nominated and elected in the only state-wide offices at stake.

The 1943 campaigns are vital to both the Republicans and Democratic organizations, which are already laying groundwork for the 1954 gubernatorial campaign. Control of county courthouses and city hall depend on the election.

Pennsylvania's second and third largest cities, Pittsburgh and Scranton, will elect a mayor this year. So will 20 of the commonwealth's 47 third class cities.

One vacancy on the State Superior Court was created by the election of Judge John C. Arnold, Clearfield, to the State Supreme Court in the 1952 elections.

Gov. John S. Fine yesterday appointed Bedford County Judge J. Colvin Wright as Arnold's successor. Wright probably will run for a full 10-year term in this year's elections.

The other Superior Court judge will be elected to succeed Judge Claude T. Reno, Allentown, who announced yesterday he will retire to private law practice after expiration of his term this year.

Reno was named to the Superior Court in 1942 by former Gov. Arthur H. James after serving as attorney general during most of James' administration. He said he desired to return to private life after serving the commonwealth in various capacities for 30 years.

In Philadelphia, a recent consolidation of city and county governments has created confusion as to what municipal offices will be filled. Philadelphia's home rule charter apparently did away with the offices of city treasurer and county coroner.

However, Thomas P. McHenry, Democratic chairman of the county commission, said candidates for both offices will be placed on the primary ballot.

Maybe the courts will have to settle the argument. The State Supreme Court has ruled that only the prothonotary of Common Pleas Court and the register of wills are outside the charter's scope.

In Pittsburgh, Mayor David L. Lawrence, a Democrat, is the only announced candidate for the mayoralty.

Republicans have been looking for a candidate for weeks without success.

Five of Pittsburgh's nine councilmanic positions and the office of city controller will be filled this year.

Scranton Democrats are expected to run Mayor James T. Hanlon for a third term. Republicans have yet to decide on a candidate. Robert Dawson, West Scranton school teacher, might be the selection.

Tribute Paid To Washington At Mount Vernon

Mt. Vernon, Va. (AP) — Thousands of visitors flocked to George Washington's home — the "biggest crowds we've ever had," officials said — in a two-day observance of the first President's birthday.

Bright, balmy sunshine brought out nearly 10,000 visitors Sunday and officials at the shrine expected yesterday's crowd to total nearly 6,000.

Scores of wreaths were laid before Washington's tomb, with President Eisenhower's naval aide, Cmdr. Edward L. Beach, placing the President's wreath at the shrine.

The highest tribute came from the Veterans of Foreign Wars, whose members placed 40 wreaths representing various VFW groups and 30 states. They followed Beach, who led off yesterday's ceremonies.

More than half a dozen wreaths were placed at the tomb Sunday and several others were laid yesterday afternoon.

Ike Wants To Retain Council

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower told Congress in an apparent change of signals yesterday that he wants to keep an economic advisory council after all.

The chief executive asked the Senate to provide funds to keep the council alive—just a week after the House Appropriations Committee voted to knock out all but $25,000 of former President Truman's request for $75,000 to keep the three-man council in existence.

It looked like another mixup in signals between the White House and Capitol Hill, recalling earlier confusion over Eisenhower's views on retaining the same power to reorganize the government that Truman had.

Chairman Taber (R-NY) of the appropriations committee told newsmen last week that Eisenhower had not objected to cutting funds for the economic council from $75,000 to $25,000.

Taber said Eisenhower himself suggested the $25,000 figure to employ a single White House economic consultant, replacing the old three-man council, and provide a staff of aides.

The New York legislator said the idea in cutting down on the money was to "get rid of that gang that's in there now" by refusing to pay its salaries.

Dr. O. F. Mershon, Eye Specialist, Dies In Philly

Philadelphia (AP) — Dr. Oliver F. Mershon, 79-year-old eye specialist and former assistant professor at the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine, died at his home here Sunday.

A native of Martins Creek, Pa., Dr. Mershon was a graduate of Easton High School, Temple University and the old Medico-Chirurgical College. He was assistant demonstrator of anatomy and instructor in refraction at the latter school from 1905 to 1916.

Dr. Mershon was assistant professor of ophthalmology at Penn from 1920 to 1948 and was a member of the medical advisory board of a Red Cross hospital here during World War I.

His first wife was the late Harriet A. Crater, of Easton. Surviving are his widow, Goldie May, and five children. Funeral services will be held here Thursday with interment at Arlington Cemetery in suburban Drexel Hill.

Jelke To Testify In Own Defense

New York (AP) — Minot (Mickey) Jelke's lawyer said yesterday the playboy probably will testify in his own defense at his cafe society vice trial.

Attorney Martin Benjamin listed the 23-year-old oleomargarine heir as a possible witness among about a dozen on call by the defense.

Jelke is accused on nine counts of procuring. Conviction carries a maximum penalty of 146 years in prison.

It's Illegal To Move Out Of Pennsylvania; State's Out-Of-Date Constitution Says So

By Peter Ohwyler

If you want to move out of Pennsylvania the State government won't stop you.

This will come as a surprise to no one.

Most people take it for granted. Their parents and grandparents did the same.

The idea that the legislature or anyone else would try to forbid people to leave Pennsylvania is unthinkable in 1953.

That's why jurists argue there's no point in having the Constitution prohibit such attempts.

It does—in Article I, Section 25.

This is just one bit of the "dead wood" which jurists, historians, scholars, legislators and Pennsylvania bar members have hoped to prune from the 80-year-old document.

Here are some of the other things in Article I which experts say are useless or unnecessary in modern times:

"The right of the citizens to bear arms in defense of themselves and the state shall not be questioned . . .

"No standing army shall in time of peace, be kept up without the consent of the legislature . . .

"No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner,

Statehood For Hawaii Urged

Washington, (AP) — Secretary of Interior McKay yesterday urged Congress to speed the admission of Hawaii to the Union as the 49th state.

He told the territories subcommittee of the House Interior Committee that "Hawaii is fully qualified for statehood."

"The people of Hawaii have performed their duties as citizens in war and peace, have proven their devotion to the principles of our nation," he said.

McKay was the first witness at a hearing on the Hawaii statehood bill introduced by Delegate Farrington (R-Hawaii) and several other members of Congress. The hearing is the 10th congressional study of Hawaii's statehood qualifications since 1935.

Captain Annich Given Assignment

Harrisburg (AP) — Capt. Norman E. Annich, of the state police was given a temporary assignment yesterday with Second Squadron headquarters in Harrisburg.

Annich has been stationed at Montoursville, Lycoming County, as commander of police barracks there. Serving in Annich's place while he is with the Second Squadron is Lt. Wilbur Smith.

"Annich has been assigned to serve with Maj. Charles C. Keller, commander of the Second Squadron," said C. M. Wilhelm, state police commissioner.

"He'll be traveling most of the time, concerned primarily with highway details," Wilhelm said.

Wilhelm said he did not know how long the temporary duty would last.

Red Cross Bloodmobile To Stop Wednesday From 10-4 At St. Matthew's Church

Ever given blood? You walk into the Red Cross Bloodmobile set-up. After the check-up you lie down.

Your arm is swabbed with alcohol—right at the bend of the elbow. You feel a prick of the needle.

It's a shot of novocain. Just under the skin. In a moment you can feel nothing in that spot. The hollow needle slips into the vein.

Then your blood is flowing through the tiny tube into a sterile bottle.

When a pint has been taken—the needle is withdrawn. A quick swab with a bit of alcohol-soaked cotton. A bit of adhesive tape to hold the cotton in place.

Then comes the cup of coffee, the sandwich, the satisfaction. Bloodletting at the Korean front is very different, veterans say.

There it's mostly by bullet or jagged hunk of shrapnel ripping its way through an American belly. The Reds also use bayonets and knives for the eviscerating job, though less frequently.

Naturally there is no cup of coffee or sandwich afterward, and no satisfaction. Only pain and consciousness of cold, the sucking feel, taste of blackness in the mouth, glare light against the eyeballs.

And—if the supply is up to par—American civilian blood or plasma to replace what is spilling out through the rent in the uniform or on the field hospital table.

It's very cold in Korea today and tomorrow, the veterans say. There's no satisfaction in dying because there was not quite enough blood.

Ever give blood? Try it Wednesday.

Go to St. Matthew's Church on Ridgeway St., East Stroudsburg. Between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

It isn't often I feel among the underprivileged of the earth. To be able to listen to the program and not the business meeting; to eat the refreshments and not have to do the dishes; to report the projects and not have to serve on the working committee is a rare and pleasant thing.

But it exacts its price. On a cold and blowy night, it would be pleasant to stay by the warmth of your own fireside. On a warm summer evening with the fireflies just beginning to come out, it's hard to leave the group gathered on the lawn.

And when there's such a fascinating speaker as Margaret Bourke-White in town, it's hard to heed the call of duty elsewhere. I do sneak in to look at her, though. "Just like her pictures," would be a trite and untrue thing.

The same white wavy hair drawn back behind her ears, the same profile—but looking somehow frazier and much more elegant than in those battlefield shots. Like the profile on a coin, it was from my side view, etched against the blue of the wall beyond.

Her voice soft and well-modulated, and her gestures gentle and graceful without fluttering. No wonder my head insisted on turning backwards and my feet stuck to the floor on my way out. The miracle is that I went at all.

Went to the routine work of PTA, committee meetings, baby showers, and forgot entirely to be envious until I got back and heard Randy raving about how wonderful she had been with prose like poetry and phrases like music—and.

SPCA To Study By-Laws Tonight

The Monroe County Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will hold a special meeting on Wednesday, February 25, at 7:30 p.m., in the council chambers on the second floor of the Stroudsburg Municipal Building.

The matter of by-laws for the organization will be discussed, and a large attendance is urged.

Right about now, I feel like a white dress shirt without any starch in the collar. And I suppose it's a fairly general feeling among the "other women" of Wyckoff's who are busily, and excitedly, drawing the shirt string that will gather together all the odds and ends of detail pertaining to Women's Days.

As you know, the gigantic, two-day promotion will get under way Friday morning at 9:30 with a breakfast in the Tea Room to which all customers... particularly women... are invited. Dottie Dunn is chairman, and together with Blanche Mackey, Chairman of contests, and Helen Mitchell, one of the advisors, has planned a program that will definitely break the ice. (WHAT ice, I might ask. There's NEVER any ice in a "Woman's Days" gathering.)

Then at three o'clock in the afternoon there's to be a fashion show, with our models stepping out of a TWA plane on the second floor, walking down the main stairway, and parading down the center aisle into the large window. Shoppers all along the route, and on Main street too, will have a first hand view. Real, live mannequins will again take to the window on Saturday night, at 7 o'clock, when millinery, hosiery, and shoes for spring will be spotlighted.

In addition to all this, there will be prizes galore. The lucky person guessing the correct number of sugar cubes in a bowl now displayed in the island window between our two front entrances, will receive a stunning set of amethyst and chrysanthemum jewelry created by Adler-Miller. Blanks for the guessing are available in every department. And a handsome bottle of genuine French perfume bearing the name of a local man, Robert Hulbert, will be presented at the afternoon fashion show. In addition there are cash prizes for the winners of the silhouette contest which runs daily in The Record.

This year's Women's Days theme, as you have no doubt heard, is "Sugar 'n' Spice." And, true to the old rhyme, the hundreds of specials to be offered throughout the entire store represent "everything nice."

Guests of honor for the two day event will be Miss Selma Ruster and Mrs. Edith Pennington, both of whom retired within the past six months after many years with our store... years in which they made thousands of friends among local residents and customers from out of town. Selma will greet her friends on Friday... Edith on Saturday. Oh, it's going to be fun... every wonderful minute.

These are going to be days sweet with the renewal of friendships... spiced with unexpectedness and surprise. They're going to be, as I said before, a combination of Sugar 'n' Spice. And you're invited!

And now a plug for our Sears Farm Store. For several days, Jerry Hinton has been reminding me at each meeting that the Sears incubators are full of the "fluffiest, fluffiest little chicks with the inkliest, blinkiest, winkiest eyes." Naturally, I feel I really should pass the information along. The chicks are cute... no doubt about it, and you can buy them singly or in large lots—healthy little fluffy-balls that are cute for Easter, and wonderful buys if you happen to be a farmer.

As I said before, when a guy keeps Hinton and Hinton the way Jerry's done, well you just naturally want to slug—I mean PLUG—his interests.

Speaker Says Korean War One Of Ideas

(This is the first of two articles on Margaret Bourke-White, guest speaker at Dutch Treat Club last night.)

The Korean War "really is a war of ideas," America's greatest woman photographer told Dutch Treat Club last night.

Addressing the local audience in the Penn-Stroud, Margaret Bourke-White called the U.N.-Communist conflict "a new kind of war."

Behind this contention, Miss Bourke-White had months of actual observation of the Korean battleground and an on-the-spot view of last year's May Day riots in Japan.

As a photographer-journalist, Miss Bourke-White had asked for assignment to the Far East. Life magazine assignments go out on a "voluntary basis," she said, early in her speech.

As a prologue to her description of the "war of ideas," the speaker described her experiences during a visit to Japan last year.

"I got my first look at the 'Korean War' in Tokyo," Miss Bourke-White said, "although I didn't realize it was the Korean War when I was watching it."

On May Day, 1952, she continued, "the bloodiest riot the Orient has ever seen... took place in Japan." Miss Bourke-White was in Tokyo to get pictures of what she and other photographers thought would be a colorful, orderly parade.

"I was shocked when I saw students carrying banners with the familiar figure of Stalin with hands held up." Then, she said, the "students linked arms, began doing a snake dance, rushed the jeeps and station wagons chanting something in (garbled) English."

The chant, she realized later, was: "Go home Yankee, go home Yankee—Yank! Go home!"

Rioters stoned photographers, overturned American cars and burned them. Although "they only threw small stones at me," Miss Bourke-White discovered later she had narrowly missed disfigurement at the hands of one of the rioting mob.

This discovery came when she inspected negatives taken during the riot which she had not used for Life. Looking through a magnifying glass she found one of the students had thrown a "bottle of acid" at her and her camera.

With characteristic humor, Miss Bourke-White noted: "Their aim was bad—but my focus was a little bad too. So that made two of us."

Although the May Day riot seemed far removed from Korea, Miss Bourke-White discovered in it a pattern which she was to follow later on her visit to "The Land of the Morning Calm."

"In the Imperial Plaza (Tokyo) that day, I saw for the first time the North Korean flag," she recalled. "Later—I had one given to me by a North Korean who had surrendered."

Analyzing the May Day disturbance, Miss Bourke-White was impressed by the fact that there are "about 600,000 troublemakers in Japan—most of whom—were brought over by the Japanese during World War two as slave labor in mines, nearly treated as slaves."

"When the war ended there were no jobs. They were easily taken over by the Communists; could not be sent to North Korea because we are at war with them; could not be deported to South Korea because they are largely Communists."

"Now they are a political fire-cracker."

The Japanese people were eager to convince American correspondents that the riot was not "typical" of their country. Next day, Miss Bourke-White received flowers and cards from hundreds of Japanese, all of them urging her not to judge the people by "these few."

Now, she said, "most of us feel we can count on Japan as an ally. Although there are strong tendencies to the Left, there are also strong threats from the Right."

Either can be dangerous, she said.

(In tomorrow's story, Miss Bourke-White's analysis of the "forgotten war"—guerrilla warfare in the Korean hills—will be reported.)

Automobiles That Sell For 99 Cents Among Bargains Offered Shoppers In Washington

Washington (AP)—The nation's capital yesterday celebrated George Washington's Birthday in a way that canny bargain hunter would have approved: with sales of everything from 99-cent automobiles to five-cent shoes.

It's an annual fling here. Almost every store in town features sales on Washington's Birthday.

Usually the spectacular bargains are limited to one or two of each item. So the buyer who would latch on to these must be in line early.

The early bird prize was awarded unofficially to A. J. Mass, a driver for the local transit company. He showed up, with equipment that made him look somewhat like an arctic explorer, at 5:30 a.m. Sunday.

Thus he had only to wait 26 hours and 30 minutes before the store opened and he could buy a refrigerator at a $150 discount. Maas is a veteran at this sort of thing. Last year he went through the same ordeal to get a television set, cheap.

Another veteran liner-up is Roscoe R. Auvil, a specialist in low-priced television sets. He got in line at 10 a.m. Sunday to get a $10 set to replace the 99-cent job he got two years ago.

One lumber yard almost outdid itself in calculated cuteness.

It announced a special sale on a combination of a cherry tree and a hatchet. Theft, to make sure no one missed the point, it said "a fellow made up to look like Washington would ride up on a horse, dismount, and start peddling the things."

A man of great dignity, Washington certainly never would have approved of such goings on. But he probably wouldn't object to the bargains.

Douglas Southall Freeman, in his biography of Washington, says few men ever kept a sharper eye for good buys. Throughout the Indian wars, Washington looked steadily for good land that could be acquired cheaply.

It Doesn't Pay Him To Be Late

Cleveland (AP)—John Myre, arrested and fined $15 yesterday for speeding on his way to work, explained to the judge, "I was a little late, your honor."

A few minutes later, back before the judge for the same offense, he explained, "I was later than ever, your honor."

Judge Stanto Adams fined him $20 more.

Barbers Falter In Second Half To Drop Blue Mountain League Outing To Sportsmen, 75-59

Wilson Borough—Franks' Barbers collapsed in the second half of a Blue Mountain League basketball game last night and the Wilson Sportsmen rolled to a 75-59 verdict over the East Stroudsburg contingent. The contest was played on the Liberty Junior High court.

Frank's club held the upper hand at the end of the first half, but Wilson held complete sway over hostilities during the second half of the contest.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

Virtually every paper that carried the story of Emmaus winning a double playoff for the Lehigh Valley League basketball tourney recently, stated that it was the first modern championship for the green and white clad cage machine. Actually, as pointed out by an unknown student from East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, it was the second clear title for Emmaus in the past 12 years.

Emmaus won the second half basketball championship in 1941 and then dropped a 32-27 verdict to Palmerton in the post-season playoff. Palmerton had won the first half crown. Emmaus came back in 1945 to tie both Catawissa and Palmerton for second half laurels. Catawissa surprised by defeating Emmaus, 52-22, and then winning over Palmerton, 31-29, to capture undisputed second half honors. Palmerton, the first half title holder that season, came back to clip Catty in the final playoff, 42-23, to gain the overall title.

My informant on Emmaus basketball is a loyal alumnus of Emmaus who for some reason or other wants to remain very much unknown. Emmaus captured the first half title this season and is now waiting to tangle with the second half title holder within a matter of days. Although the green and white clad Emmaus contingent captured first half laurels, the charges of Coach Ken Meyer have found the going very tough during the second half of the present pennant fight. The only real win for Emmaus during the second half was last Friday's nod over Lehigh.

Bill Hickey brought an upsurge of hope for basketball at Stroudsburg High School on Friday, when the lanky forward canned 18 points, even though the Mountaineers went down to defeat at the hands of Northampton. Hickey will play a major role in basketball at the W. Main St. school next season, at which time the Mountaineers will be out to improve upon their lowly position during both the first and second halves of the present campaign.

Making his initial start of the campaign, Bill Bailey totaled 17 points for his highest production by far this season. Bailey registered his total on eight goals from the floor and one from the foul line. But, the scoring outburst of Hickey and Bailey failed to change the tide of battle against a Northampton contingent that pulled itself into a position from which it can possibly gain a tie for the second half title.

Frank Radler, most successful manager in the history of the Stroudsburg Poconos, is considering several baseball offers for next season, one of which has been forwarded to the veteran pitcher by the Brooklyn Dodgers. Lloyd "Sonny" Woodling, Reeder, may also take a pitching position in the Dodgers' farm system after East Stroudsburg State Teachers College closes its doors on regular classes for the Summer months.

Ed Novagratz, former star with the Northampton High grid machine, has signed with the Detroit Lions, of the National Football League. The former Lehigh Valley League star is now a senior at Moravian, where he won top honors as a pass receiver for the Greyhounds. Novagratz, who is also highly regarded in baseball, will report to the Lions at their Wisconsin training camp in late July. The Lions won the 1952 championship by defeating the Cleveland Browns in a playoff.

ESSTC annually presents one of the strongest girls' basketball teams in the business. This is a fact that is recognized by all rival colleges and will receive extra recognition by Hunter College. The Warriors are the only college capable of defeating Hunter in recent campaigns. There was no doubt as to which was the stronger team on Saturday, as the Warriors rolled over Cheyney, 58-20.

East Stroudsburg Host To Pen Argyl

Mountaineers Tangle With Palmerton

Stroudsburg pulls down the curtain on the Lehigh Valley League flag race today and East Stroudsburg High will take part in its next to last Lehigh-Northampton League contest of the current campaign.

The Mountaineers will invade the home domain of Palmerton High, while the Cavaliers are at home with Pen Argyl, in the N. Courtland St. gym.

Junior varsity action at East Stroudsburg gets underway at 6:45 p.m., while the main event begins at 8 p.m. The Stroudsburg-Palmerton junior varsity contest is listed for 7:15 p.m. and the varsity contest at 8:30 p.m.

Lone Victory

East Stroudsburg has been able to defeat only one Lehigh-Northampton foe all season and that was Pen Argyl, the same contingent that will provide the opposition on the N. Courtland hardwood today. The Cavaliers are hopeful of bringing home the bacon once again against Pen Argyl.

Coach Dick Forster's lineup will feature Don Herman and Captain Joe Chase at the forward positions and Bill Pensyl at center. The guards will be any two of a list containing Bill Sommers, Harold White, Bob "Red" Kupizewski and Paul Turner.

Stroudsburg's starting lineup will probably remain in doubt right up until game time, due to illness on the squad. Bill Metzger received a shot for virus yesterday and Bill Bailey is hampered with a heavy cold.

If Bailey is able to play he will open at center, with Byron "Chick" Miller and Bill Hickey at the forward posts. Don Garavanti and captain elect Karl Weingartner will handle the guard duties. Miller and Hickey will serve as co-captains today.

The Mountaineers are still without the services of Captain Al Adelman and Ray Ejdys, out with a shoulder and ankle injury respectively.

Phillies Add Trio To Signed Group

Clearwater, Fla. (AP) — Three more players joined spring training workouts yesterday after agreeing on salary terms with the Philadelphia Phillies.

Players

Catcher Forrest "Smoky" Burgess—whose .296 batting average topped Phillies regulars last year—and relief pitchers Jim Konstanty and Andy Hansen all signed in time to take the workout.

Area Softball Clinic Possible

Earl Hemsicher, an authority on softball in the Allentown area, has volunteered to put on a softball clinic in the Stroudsburgs. It was announced last night by George Metropoulos, athletic director at the Monroe County YMCA. Fritz Bader, also well known in Allentown softball circles, will assist Hemsicher.

The clinic will be held mainly for umpires. It will deal with changes in rules, proper pitching methods and legal plays.

Contact

It is also possible that a former "name" player will appear at the clinic.

Local softball fans, players and managers liking the idea of having a clinic are urged to contact Metropoulos. Plans for a clinic must be made in the near future.

ESSTC Cage Machine Hopeful Of Ending Long Losing Habit While Entertaining Lock Haven

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College will attempt to snap its four game losing streak in basketball today, when the Warriors entertain the Bald Eagles of Lock Haven State Teachers College, on the Normal Hill hardwood.

A preliminary encounter between the ESSTC junior varsity and the College Jets will begin at 7 p.m., while the main event goes on at approximately 8:30 p.m.

The Warriors are currently supporting a record of only six victories to go with seven defeats. At one time this season the ESSTC charges of Coach Chris Denis had a mark of five wins and two setbacks, only to drop five of their next six outings.

Lock Haven will bring a strong contingent to town that will force the Warriors to the limit if the host cage machine intends to break its losing habit.

Coach Denis was undecided about his starting lineup yesterday, but the popular Normal Hill coach is expected to stick with the same array that has carried the bulk of the load this season.

This means that Ray "Casey" Kaseman and Joe Maioriello will handle the forward positions, while high scoring John Sloan is at home at center. Tony Black and Ed "Jake" Palmer will probably handle the guard duties.

ESSTC has won over Wilkes College, Ithaca, West Chester, Paterson, Kutztown and Trenton this season, while bowing to Millersville, twice; Trenton, Panzer, Ithaca, West Chester and Wilkes.

The Warriors play at Kutztown on Saturday and then wind up their short campaign against the University of Scranton next Wednesday, in Scranton.

Bratton Halts Portuguese In Fifth Round

Brooklyn (AP) — Former NBA Welterweight Champion Johnny Bratton of Chicago knocked out Tuzo Portuguese of Costa Rica in 2:46 of the fifth round of a scheduled 10 last night in the feature bout at Eastern Parkway Arena after almost being flattened himself.

The 25-year-old Bratton, thus scored his 31st knockout in 77 fights, and it was one of his best performances because he came back after reeling on the ropes in the fourth round.

Stunned

Bratton, who weighed 152½ to his opponent's 161½, hit Portuguese with a right toward the end of the fifth and that stunned the Costa Rican. When Portuguese was going down, Bratton got in another wallop to finish him.

The fourth, though, was a different story. Portuguese hit Bratton with everything he had, and had the former titlist almost helpless. But the arm-weary Tuzo couldn't get in the final blow, and Bratton had a chance to recover.

The fight was a tossup for the first four rounds, with Bratton having slightly the better of the punching. Referee Jimmy Freeman had Bratton ahead, 3-1, when the end came, while Judge Frank Fulam and Joe Vaccarella had it 2-2.

Michigan Coach Moves

Ann Arbor, Mich. (AP) — George F. Celtham, University of Michigan backfield coach, yesterday announced he has signed a contract for a similar position at University of Southern California.

Biddy Basketball Squad Slated To Play In Scranton Tourney

Stroudsburg's Biddy Basketball contingent will take part in the annual Biddy Basketball Tournament in Scranton on Saturday, it was announced last night by George Metropoulos, athletic director at the Monroe County YMCA. The local league is sponsored by the Stroudsburg Lions Club.

Practice sessions are planned for the Stroudsburg team today and Thursday at the YMCA. Practices get underway at 4:05 p.m. Metropoulos has been working with Ray Welsh, former out-standing basketball coach at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, in developing young players. Welsh is also a scout for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Stroudsburg contingent, to be coached by Metropoulos, will tangle with Hawley on the opening night program. If Stroudsburg wins its opening game it will appear in the tournament again a week from Saturday, probably against a team from the Scranton area.

Inter-State Loop May Operate

Allentown, (AP) — The class "B" Inter-State League, abandoned last month as an eight team circuit, appeared to be ready to operate last night as a four-team baseball loop in 1953.

Booster

The Allentown baseball boosters endorsed the efforts of Charles Cahn, Philadelphia contractor, to set up a team here and pledged financial assistance and aid in a ticket selling campaign for the coming season.

Haney Greets
Pirates With Tongue Lashing

Havanna, Cuba, (AP)—Fred Haney, new manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, greeted 25 players for the opening of spring training yesterday with a bit of tongue lashing.

"I get tired of other managers razzing me about the Pirates' last place finish," Haney said. "... I don't want any loafers."

Haney then directed a two-hour workout at the LaSalle School diamond. Seventeen players missed the initial drills.

Meanwhile, the Pirates' front office reported the receipt of signed contracts from outfielder Frank Thomas and shortstop Danny O'Connell. That leaves only five players unsigned.

Courtney Signs
Brownie Contract

St. Louis, (AP)—Holdout Clint Courtney, a first-string catcher, and pitcher Duane Pillette agreed to 1953 contract terms yesterday with the St. Louis Browns.

Courtney, who previously had turned down Owner Bill Veeck's offer, received a "sizeable" salary increase, a club spokesman said. The reported figure is about $11,000.

Koren's Roofers took the measure of Candyland in the nightcap, 31-27.

The loss dropped the Firemen further behind WVPO in the fight for first place being waged by the two cage machines.

Line Material, playing some of its best basketball of the campaign, led 13-7 at the halfway mark and then made certain of victory with an 8-4 bulge in the last stanza.

The winning aggregation used a 10-3 advantage in the second quarter to good advantage, in building the halftime advantage.

Koren's Roofers fought off a strong finish by Candyland in the last period to emerge with the four-point victory.

The Roofers used an 8-3 edge in the first period and an 11-7 advantage in the third round to cement victory.

John Gilpin, Candyland guard, won individual scoring honors for the day with 20 points.
